

TOPPERS

Toppers are similar to drapery valances and rod pocket valances, except they are mounted onto a board by either stapling or by the use of a hook and loop tape across the top edge of the board. They are normally mounted above the window, and usually go all the way across the top of the opening. The hardware required to hang them are L-brackets or angle irons.

There are business rules when talking about toppers, just like the other categories. When using the term “toppers”, you are instructing the workroom that the valance will be board mounted.

To learn more about designing and specifying Toppers refer to Chapter 3 in “Custom Soft Treatments Handbook of Common Practices”. Available for purchase from either paperback (Amazon) or digital here
